

DEATH OF MRS. O. MAX GARDNER SADDENS CAMPUS COMMUNITY — LEADERS PRAISE HER WORK

Dr. Poston Pledges To Continue To Build Institution Which Will Bring Honor To College's Namesakes

Dr. Eugene Poston, speaking at the funeral of Mrs. Gardner, said, "She had the unusual ability to put first things first in religious life, government, community and civic service. Service to her fellowmen was always first with her and this is the essence of Christianity. As President of Gardner-Webb College, I can assure you we dedicate ourselves to building an institution that will honor the name of Gardner and Mrs. O. Max Gardner."

In a newspaper quote, Dr. Poston said, "Personally she was one of the finest Christian spirits I have ever met. She helped and encouraged me greatly through the years."

Scripture read at the funeral was Proverbs 31: 30-32.

In 1943

COLLEGE WAS NAMED IN HONOR OF GARDNER-WEBB FAMILIES

Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Sr., 83, wife of the late O. Max Gardner, governor of North Carolina (1929-32) and one of the staunchest supporters of Gardner-Webb College for decades died at 2 a.m., Thursday, Jan. 16.

Mrs. Gardner suffered a stroke on Jan. 11 and was hospitalized in Charlotte until the time of her death. She was born Sept. 7, 1885, in Shelby and was the daughter of the late Judge and Mrs. James L. Webb.

MRS. O. MAX, GARDNER

It was, in a great way, through the work of the Gardner and Webb families that the Boiling Springs Junior College began the progress which has led it to today's outstanding position. The school was named in honor of the two families in July of 1947.

The O. Max Gardner Fine Arts Center, the James Webb Auditorium (Decker) Hall, the new home for the President, and the Webb Administration Building stand as monuments to the vital work done by these families in the progress of the college.

Mrs. Gardner and her sons continued support of the college after the death of Mr. Gardner and her work on the Board of Trustees encompassed the entire sphere of work at the school.

Funeral services were held Jan. 17 in the First Baptist Church of Shelby with Dr. E. Eugene Poston and Rev. Roland Lesh officiating assisted by Rev. Marion Dabone. [A burial was in Sunset Cemetery in Shelby and memorials, at the family's request, went to Gardner-Webb College.]

Mrs. Gardner was a graduate with honors from the Lucy Cobb school for girls in Athens, Ga. She traveled widely before and after her marriage, having gone abroad four times and toured most of the United States.

When her husband was governor, she was considered a charming "First Lady" and also entitled "Citizen-at-large". She was a benefactor of many charitable, cultural, religious and educational institutions and agencies. Her interests in North Carolina have encompassed the state.

Her husband was in the Treman Little Cabinet as under secretary of the treasury and was appointed Ambassador to Great Britain by President Harry Truman.

Mrs. Gardner was a popular member of Washington society. She was a life member of the Woman's National Democratic Club, being one of four honorary vice presidents. She also belonged to the Colonial Dames of America, Washington Chapter, the 1925 F. Street Club, and was a life member of the Y.W.C.A. there.

Mrs. Gardner was a sister-in-law of the late Sen. Clyde R. Hay and a niece of the late federal judge E. Yates Webb.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Lee Rogers, of Milledgeville, N. J., and her son, Ralph Webb Gardner, Her son, James Webb Gardner, died Jan. 19, 1946, and O. Max Gardner, Jr., who died Nov. 10, 1961. She also leaves six grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Other Leaders Comment

DAVID E. GILLESPIE: "Mrs. Gardner knew what life — and death are all about, and her storehouse of memories was full. She got much out of living because she put much into it. She not only left a positive imprint on the people and institutions surviving with the Gardner and Webb names, but on her beloved North Carolina."

ROBERT W. SCOTT, governor of North Carolina: "I express my deepest sympathy to the family of Mrs. O. Max Gardner. She was a good lady all her life. She played an active role in the public life of North Carolina and was a great asset to its distinguished career of her husband. North Carolina has lost one of its finest citizens."

R. PATRICK SPANGLER, chairman of the Gardner-Webb board of trustees: "North Carolina has lost one of her most distinguished citizens. Her impact was felt in Christian education, the political life of her state and nation and her many philanthropic acts. I think she will be missed most by her many friends of all classes. She had a warmth that few people ever possess."

SOCIAL EVENTS — at the campus were usually greeted by her presence. Here she is in a receiving line talking with Thomas J. McGraw, vice-president of the college.

LONG RANGE PLANNING — gave Mrs. Gardner pleasure as she worked to help make the dreams come true. She is shown here with J. L. Seattle, Jr., of Shelby as they study the future campus layout.

GARDNER SUPPORT — has meant much to the college. Left to right: Mrs. O. Max Gardner, [illegible], Mrs. Ralph Gardner, Mr. Ralph Gardner, Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Sr., Mrs. Eugene Poston and Dr. Poston.

It yet remains to be seen just how large our web will grow, but as much as we know, once you've woven it, we never let you go. This is the spirit of Gardner-Webb.

College Serves Denominational Needs

Gardner-Webb College is serving Baptists. The educational junior college, now on the brink of becoming a four year school, has over 100 students studying for some phase of lifetime Christian work.

While the majority of the 1,300 students are not attending fulltime Christian service, it is felt by the college administration that the philosophy of the school is helping develop many of these into strong leaders with new insight into the problems faced by the modern church.

Areas of service listed among the 1,300 are the ministry of music, religious education, doctors, church secretaries, youth directors, foreign missions, home missions and teaching in the area of Bible and religion.

While all of these students are studying for future service, they are also taking part in a planned program of study and activities which is designed to upgrade their regular studies. The Ministerial Association, the Baptist Student Union, the Young Woman's Auxiliary, and the Fellowship of Christians United in Service are organizations which help put them into the extra work by these students.

A preaching clinic is held for ministerial students who will be going to area churches to fill pulpits. All services are held each month in Shelby, and during the first semester of this school year there were 31 pulpits filled by GW students in addition to the 11 churches who have GW students as fulltime workers.

The Student Prayer Service on Wednesday evenings attracts an average of 80 students and always popular are the Morning Watch services held twice a week and a Prayer Breakfast held Thursdays.

Through the cooperation of area radio stations, students have an opportunity to do 10 minute worship programs and learn the value of broadcast and taping methods.

All of this coupled with lectures on marriage counseling, hospital visitation, Baptism and other areas where a practical approach is needed for training, help give the college a well rounded approach to the training of future Christian leaders.

Rev. Charles (Buddy) Freeman, college minister, is referring some of the present approaches to fulltime Christian work states that there are plans for considerable expansion in these areas; some of which will be announced in the future.

FIRST ANNUAL FUND INVITES YOUR HELP

The vast majority of Gardner-Webb's alumni haven't as yet taken advantage of the opportunity to help the cause of Christian higher education at a time when help is most desperately needed.

Our first Annual Fund has a record of slow but steady progress. These things are slow because the average alumnus just doesn't know how urgently his close sister needs his support. He doesn't realize the value of the combined gifts of the alumni to an institution. If each of Gardner-Webb's alumnus gave $10 per year toward her support, that would give her about $70,000 annually to provide that margin of excellence that spells quality and greater service to our young men and women—that magic thing that you catch in the campus spirit and you see in the progress of the program and plants.

As Gardner-Webb grows into a four-year institution, these things will be needed for her to maintain her status and Southern Association accreditation and to compete with the well established four-year colleges. That needed margin of excellence could well be provided by the loyalty and support of her alumni. Would You Not to take part in the first annual fund? Take a moment to fill in the coupon below. (This is tax deductible).

Victor II Is New Mascot; Victor I Dies Unexpectedly

Victor I is Shown with Victor II

Victor, mascot of the Gardner-Webb College Bulldogs for nine years, died Jan. 5. The huge Bulldog which had been cared for by Bud McSwain, postmaster at Bowling Springs, for many years resigned over a dramatic period of the College's growing athletic program.

During the same years, Victor saw two Region 10 football titles, four Western Carolina Junior College football titles, three Western Carolina Conference basketball titles, a Region 10 basketball title, three WCCO basketball titles, and two teams entered into national playoffs, and two conference play titles.

Ironically, his death comes at a time when the college is making a transition from junior to senior college athletics. His son, Victor II, will now take over the position. He also is being cared for by McSwain who does this as a service to G-W and its athletic progress.

Bulldogs Advance In National Poll

Gardner-Webb College's basketball team is ranked eighth in the nation after coming through the first half of a rugged schedule with a 10-4 mark.

The Bulldogs have won in four games with Atlantic Coast Conference brethren anti; defeated Delk of Georgia, Brandywine of Delaware, Miami State of Florida, and Abraham Baldwin of Ga. in interregional clashes and remain unbeaten in Region 10 play. The lane defeat was a startling 134-109 upset at Fort Pierce, Fla., by Indian River Junior College.

Schedule Changed

Page three was scheduled to be a picture page about the lovely new home for the president of the college. However, due to space limitations in this edition, the page had to be cancelled until the next edition.

An open house is slated Feb. 3 for Trustees of the college and other friends.

The house was given last year to the college by the Gardner-Webb Foundation in honor of Mrs. O. M. Gordon, Sr.
